George Soros is a billionaire and a philanthropist, a social activist who uses his wealth to champion social causes and change the world. With access to Soros and his Open Society Foundations, Anna Porter examines the growth of the man and the organization, the causes he has championed, and his successes and failures.

"[The Ghosts of Europe] offers a succinct, highly readable, contemporary history, interspersed with interviews with influential national figures regarding past, present and future." (Philip Marchand National Post) Porter explains the lens through which Soros looks at both economics and politics?the idea that there's a two-way relationship between cause and effect. (Maclean's) Based on interviews with Soros and his friends, colleagues, and business partners, Porter writes an extraordinary biography of the billionaire, focusing on his legacy. (Publishers Weekly online) "Anna Porter will always be a force whenever language takes centre stage. In her latest book, Buying a Better World, she spins a mesmerizing narrative of one of the most intriguing human beings of his time, billionaire philanthropist George Soros." (Michael Harris, award-winning author of Party of One) "Anna Porter's Kasztner's Train takes us to the magnificently researched and reconstructed world of Hungary during the twin fascist terrors of the Arrow Cross and the SS - to a world in which everything is in flux except the determination of Kasztner. It will become a classic of the times it deals with." (Thomas Keneally, author of Schindler's List) "[Buying a Better World is] a compelling portrait of a larger-than-life man who, even as he mirrors his times, stands apart and tries to reshape the world." (Janice Gross Stein) About the Author Anna Porter is the author of many books, including The Ghosts of Europe, Kasztner's Train, and The Storyteller. She has won many awards for her writing, including the Shaughnessey Cohen Prize for Political Writing, the Nereus Writers' Trust Non-Fiction Award, the Jewish Book Award for Non-Fiction, and the Canadian Authors Association/Birks Family Foundation Award for Biography. She is an Officer of the Order of Canada and also holds the Order of Ontario. She lives in Toronto.
