Kenneth R. Howe, Ofelia Miramontes : The Ethics of Special Education (Professional Ethics Series) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Ethics of Special Education (Professional Ethics Series):

“This book offers a sound approach to dealing with difficult issues, . . . recommend[ed] highly for advanced graduates, graduates students, or even practicing professionals.”—American Journal on Mental RetardationThe authors delineate the ethical issues most salient and pressing to special education and provide a philosophically grounded framework for their discussion. The book presents 35 real-life cases that raise personal, institutional, and policy issues. This approach allows students to reason and collaborate about ethical issues rather than simply to master a set of principles and precepts. Among the issues highlighted by the cases are: Due process bull; The distribution of educational resources bull; Institutional unresponsiveness bull; Professional relationships bull; Conflicts among parents and teachers bull; Confidentiality.
